DIAGNOSIS OF TUBERCULOSIS.

Slighter Symptoms Now Recognized as Tell-tale.

From the Youth's Companion.

To the casual observer it may seem strange that physicians often find it so difficult to determine whether a patient is or is not suffering from consumption. The cough, the emaciation, the hectic fever and the night sweats seem to be sufficiently characteristic of the disease to render its recognition easy, even to the non-medical person. And so, indeed, it is ordinarily in these advanced stages, but it is very different at the beginning. Every one knows that the earlier treatment is begun, the more likely it is to be successful. It is extremely important, therefore, to be able to detect the very beginning of consumption while yet the person is apparently in almost perfect health—and here lies the difficulty.

If there is no cough, no hectic flush, no undue perspiration at night, and if examination of the expectorated matters does not show the presence of the tubercle-bacilli, the only departure from health being perhaps a tendency to fever after exercise, some loss of flesh and a rather rapid pulse, the experienced physician may suspect a beginning of tuberculosis, but he would be rash to assert it as a fact.

Within a year or so several new methods of detecting the disease in its incipient stage have been devised, and one at least of them promises to be of great practical utility. These methods all consist in the use of application of this substance. It has been known for years that the injection of tuberculin will be followed, if the subject is tuberculous, by symptoms of "reaction," that is, by fever, headache, pains in the bones, and other signs of malaise. But this method has never found favor among physicians generally, because of the belief that it is dangerous. It was very dangerous as formerly used; large doses were injected and the reaction that followed was at times very severe, and in certain cases it was known to have killed the disease in persons in whom it had become quiescent and who were practically cured. It was also feared by some that the disease might be caused in one of weak resisting powers by inoculation with the tuberculin. These dangers do not, however, exist, now that the substance is used in very small doses and in a form containing, as it does, only the glyceric extract of the tubercle-bacilli, and never the bacilli themselves. Nevertheless, other more simple methods have been devised, and are used in preference to the injections of former days.

Lions and Man-Eaters.

From McClure's Magazine.

There is a distinction in Africa between ordinary lions and "man-eaters." The ordinary lion does not wilfully attack man. The presence of lions roaming at night on the veldt is not disturbing to any native, nor to whites who have come to understand the beast. Persons returning to their camps after nightfall do not notice the roaring of lions, or the cries of leopards and hyenas. It is seldom that people bent upon domestic errands carry weapons in the darkness, although at night the yell of British East Africa is alive with roaring beasts, which may be heard from the verandas of the houses. Lions give the passing man a wide berth day or night, when it is apparent that he means no mischief. An ordinary lion, when wounded, will try to fight before he flees. When it is wounded, he will, especially if wounded, try to maul his enemy with teeth and claws. A lion hunt is usually a chase in which the hunters goad the game into combat. Once a lion has tasted human blood, however, it is no more afraid of man, but learns that he is the weakest of animals and the choicest of meat. Such a lion is known as a man-eater because now he hunts man.

The injured man was removed to the Casualty Hospital for treatment.

DEATH BY ACCIDENT

Coroner's Verdict in Case of Elder Rees.

STRUCK BY STREET CAR

Apparently Bewildered When Caught Between the Tracks.

HIS WIFE ILL IN SANITARIUM

Parkersburg, W. Va., Adventist Had Just Placed Her in Takoma Park Institution.

Elder Joseph M. Rees, president of the West Virginia conference of the Seventh Day Adventists, who was struck by a street car yesterday afternoon while near the Peace monument, died at the Emergency Hospital at 6:45 o'clock last evening, his death resulting from a fracture of the skull. The deceased, who was about sixty-five years of age, came here from his home, 1200 7th street, Parkersburg, W. Va., to bring his invalid wife to the sanitarium of the Washington Seventh Day Adventists at Takoma Park, and had left her at the sanitarium only a short while before he received the injuries which proved fatal. Coroner Nevitt was advised of the death of Elder Rees and directed that a jury be summoned for the purpose of holding an inquest at the morgue tomorrow morning. The jury, after hearing the testimony, returned a verdict of death by accident.

Elder Rees, it is stated, was one of the popular members of the Seventh Day Adventist Church in the United States, and his death will cause genuine sorrow among the members of the church. Dr. Kress told of the death of his friend, who was in the sanitarium three months ago he was in the sanitarium under the care of Dr. E. H. Kress, medical superintendent of the institution, having been operated upon. He recovered and returned to Parkersburg.

Left Wife's Bedside.

Yesterday morning Elder Rees attended the morning service at the sanitarium and offered a fervent prayer. Later he went to his wife's room and told her he wanted to go to the city to attend to some business, and just before leaving he turned toward her bed and said: "Well, dear, are you sure you can spare me today?" His wife answered in the affirmative and he left the building, coming to the city. He had been in an indignant mood, for during the civil war and several years ago he was granted a pension. His friends think he was in the city yesterday to see about getting his pension increased, and that he probably visited the Capitol just before the accident occurred.

Dr. Kress alluded to the death of his friend as soon as he was notified of the accident, reaching there before his friend died. Mr. Rees was unconscious, however, and died without being able to recognize him.

The medical superintendent of the sanitarium returned to the institution and informed Mrs. Rees of the death of her husband. She had already been advised of the accident. Later Prof. David Rees, son of the deceased, who is connected with the Mount Vernon, Ohio, College, was notified of his father's death. He started east as soon as he received the news, reaching here today. Two other children survive the elder.

Served Throughout the War.

Elder Rees enlisted in the army at the outbreak of the war, joining a regiment in Howard county, Ind. He served in other regiments later on, and received an honorable discharge at the close of the war. Much of his ministerial duty has been performed in the army, and the conference regarding his ability by electing him president. He was looked upon as a man of noble character, was kind-hearted, and had a lovely disposition, always looking on the bright side of everything.

Described by Witnesses.

Dr. MacLay, resident physician at the Emergency Hospital, was the first witness examined at the inquest. He described the cuts and bruises that Elder Rees had received. Deputy Coroner Casson told the jury that he found a fracture of the skull and several broken ribs, in addition to the several cuts and bruises.

Unseen by Motorman.

D. E. Miller, motorman, testified that he stopped his car in time to avoid striking the pedestrian. The latter, he thought, became bewildered and slipped to where the other car struck him.

Friend of Crowned Heads.

But the Kaiser Was Once Unkind to John Fitzpatrick.

"I've been everywhere on earth—know all the celebrities of Europe, Asia, Africa and so forth and others who are not so celebrated. King William of Germany fined me $10 once for disorderly conduct, and I've patted the Empress of China on the back and—"

John Fitzpatrick launched forth in the foregoing account of himself and his travels this morning in the Police Court, when called upon to explain a charge of vagrancy.

CHRIST'S LAST WORDS

Theme of Good Friday Services in the Churches.

ADDRESSES AND MUSIC

Bishop Harding at the Chapel of the Nativity.

OBSERVANCE AT ST. PATRICK'S

The Tenebrae to Be Chanted This Evening—Celebration of Maundy Thursday.

The "Seven Words From the Cross" formed the theme of the Good Friday service today in the churches. From noon until 3 o'clock—the space of time marked in the Scriptures as from the sixth hour to the ninth hour—black-draped churches were filled with a silent, kneeling throng of men and women. Many of the churches today opened their doors for those who simply meditated, there being no music and very little service. At St. Patrick's, however, notably the Episcopal and Roman Catholic churches, held services interspersed with addresses and music.

The Three Hours' Service.

The three hours' service, as conducted at the Chapel of Nativity was similar to that in very nearly all the churches. After a very short preliminary service of prayers and a hymn, the remainder of the time was taken up by short talks, using each of the seven last words as texts. These were: "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." "Today shalt thou be with Me in Paradise." "Woman, behold thy son in Belshazzar." "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken me?" "I thirst." "It is finished." and "Father, into Thy hands I commend my spirit."

Service in St. Patrick's.

The service of the passion of Christ, according to the gospel of St. John, was held in St. Patrick's Church this morning. Rev. Father Thomas H. McGulgan, assistant pastor of the church, celebrated the mass of the presanctified. Revs. J. H. Burke and J. M. Ryan of the Holy Cross College acted as deacon and subdeacon, respectively.

The passion was sung by Revs. Irvine, Zerhausen and McGulgan, assisted by the men of St. Patrick's sanctuary choir. Rev. Dr. Russell, rector of the church, was master of ceremonies, with James Fagan acting as his assistant.

In the Episcopal Churches.

Good Friday was celebrated today at St. Mark's Episcopal Church, at 3d and A streets southeast, beginning with an early communion service at 7 o'clock. Morning prayer and litany were held at 11 o'clock and from 12 until 3 o'clock there was the passion service conducted by the rector, Rev. Father William J. Carroll of St. Patrick's Church, was master of ceremonies, with James Fagan acting as his assistant.

In the Catholic Church.

At the Orthodox Church of St. Sophia, 8th and G streets northwest, the Greek Church, holy week has been celebrated with many services full of ceremony. Beginning with last Sunday the story of the passion has been told by sermons, anthems and symbols. Tonight the passion will be sung in twelve parts, the singing lasting nearly three hours, beginning at 8 o'clock. Rev. Alex. Opatow, the priest of the church, will conduct the services today and this evening.

At Hamline Church Tonight.

Good Friday will be observed at Hamline M. E. Church this evening at 8 o'clock, in a program that consists of a silent service. The plan is to have Christ's agony, arrest, trial, suffering and death all told in appropriate music. For this purpose a program has been arranged under the direction of Miss Ida P. O'Neal. The Hamline Choir Club and an auxiliary chorus, with quartets, duets, solos and instrumental selections, will render the parts assigned and, in addition, there will be seasons of silent prayer. Scripture readings and announcements, but in no case will any words be spoken, save those words that are used in expressing the sentiments of hymns.

Observance of Maundy Thursday.

Maundy Thursday was observed yesterday by thousands of Roman Catholics. The sacred host rested yesterday in the tabernacles of the Catholic churches, shut off from view, the symbolism reminding those who attended the churches of the stone rolled before the sepulcher. A white cloth covering the receptacle in which the sacred host was kept was the symbol of the winding sheet in the tomb. Great crowds visited St. Patrick's Church during the day. The holy vigil, which is a season of fast and prayer, lasted from midnight until daybreak today, and was kept by men of the church and members of the League of the Good Shepherd.

Holy Communion Celebrated.

The only church in Washington which celebrated Maundy Thursday evening with the holy communion was St. John's Protestant Episcopal. The church was filled. The service was conducted by Rev. Dr. Roland Cotton Smith and Rev. S. S. Dunlap.
